PREAMBLE

Startup incubators are unique organizations that function as a springboard for early-stage businesses and startups with the goal of providing specialized tools needed for startups to grow and innovate.

The resources and services they offer can vary, but often include access to office space, mentorship opportunities, business education classes, and community networking events. The structure of an incubator is much like a corporate office space and can include mandatory meetings, strict deadlines, and even a direct supervisor.

The idea for incubator workshop was to motivate the students to take up new ideas and projects and convert them to startup. The students will be able to create new job opportunities in various domains and increase research opportunities.
